

Savage Battle Raging

French Parachute More Troops Into Indochina Area Reds Seeking to Seize

HANOI, Indochina (P) — The French parachuted reinforcements today into the Dien Bien Phu fortress as the Communist-led Vietminh hurled thousands more troops into the savage battle to drive the French out of northwest Indochina.

The rebels bombarded the dust bowl fortress with artillery shells before they launched their new series of attack.

As the violent battle raged on its second day, the French high command in Saigon announced that a battalion of French and Vietnamese paratroopers had jumped onto the Dien Bien Phu airstrip to reinforce the French Union garrison.

Other reinforcements were airlifted from Hanoi.

The French high command in Saigon said the French Union forces had the "situation well in hand" and were holding solidly against the "very violent" rebel attack.

A French spokesman predicted the fighting would last several days.

A three-hour cease-fire interrupted the fighting yesterday morning while both rebels and French carried their dead and wounded from the battlefield. The French claimed at least 1,000 rebels killed in the initial assault Saturday night and early yesterday, and admitted their own losses were "appreciable."

The fighting resumed at noon yesterday with a heavy rebel bombardment of the strongly fortified French-held plain in the heart of the Thai tribal country.

Then, as they had on Saturday, wave on wave of screaming, bugle-blowing rebel troops surged forward against the bristling barbed wire barricades ringing the French positions.

French mobile artillery, tanks, mortars and heavy machine gun and rifle fire cut down the Vietminh by the scores. Fighters and bombers roared overhead, mowing a wide swath in the ranks of the wildly charging rebels.

The legions of Communist leader Ho Chi Minh appeared making an all-out effort to give the French a major setback before the Big Four and Communist China meet in Geneva, Switzerland, April 26 to seek a path to peace in Indochina.

The French for their part hoped to decimate the ranks of the best rebel divisions and perhaps thus break the back of the Vietminh forces.

The fighting was described as the most savage yet in the seven-year-old Indochina war.

The French have staked their hold in the hilly Thai country on Dien Bien Phu since last autumn, when they seized the plain and abandoned other towns in the northwest. U. S. supplied war equipment was flown in from Hanoi, 175 miles to the east, to build a formidable defense system—a ring of bunkers, trenches and gun emplacements around an airfield.

The Vietminh encircled the fortress, entrenching from 36,000 to 46,000 troops in the surrounding hills. Making up this force were the four best trained and equipped of the Vietminh's eight regular divisions. More than 100,000 coolies packed in supplies—mostly from Communist China—over mountain trails.

French fighters and bombers harassed the besieging force without letup day after day, and there were some patrol clashes. Finally the Vietminh closed in last week with mortars and guns as big as 105mm. cannon. Some of the rebel troops dug foxholes and trenches only 800 yards from the center of the French position.

Late Saturday afternoon the rebels lunged out of the hills by the thousands, cascading against acres of barbed-wire.

They stepped up the wild assault from several directions during the night despite the sweeping fire of French mobile artillery, tanks and machine guns.

The rebels apparently counted on their numerical superiority to overrun the French positions.

Screaming infantry fired rifles, pistols, submachineguns and hurled bamboo spears as they closed in for hand-to-hand fighting. Two French outposts were overpowered.

Aiken Squares Top Billing Away to Fight To Economic For Farm Plan Issues Today

Opposition Includes Democrats and Some Congress Republicans

Inter-American Conference Begins Talks of Problems

WASHINGTON (P) — Chairman Aiken (R-Vt.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee who is championing administration farm policy, squared away today for a gathering Senate storm over a program backed by some Democrats and Republicans and outspokenly opposed by others.

The Senate test on the program, backed by some Democrats and Republicans and outspokenly opposed by others, may come on the decision of Republican Leader Knowland of California to call for action on a wool production bill.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.) heads a group, including some Republicans, seeking to attach to the wool measure a two-year extension of present high-level fixed government farm price supports.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson argue such high-level supports should expire at the end of this year and be replaced by flexible lower-level price plans.

Aiken, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and Sen. Anderson (D-Minn.), former secretary of agriculture, in separate interviews, promised a floor fight against the Ellender proposal.

They point out that the Agriculture Committee is only part way through public hearings on main features of the new program, including flexible price supports and a 2½-billion-dollar "set aside" of surplus cotton, wheat, butter and dairy products.

Dairy industry witnesses were called before the committee hearing today.

Backing Aiken and Anderson are Sen. Holland (D-Fla.) and Sen. Williams (R-De).

Ellender, who formerly headed the committee, said he is confident that more than 50 senators, a clear majority, will vote for a two-year extension of the present system. Backing his move are Senators Russell (D-Ga.), Maybank (D-SC), Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Young (R-ND).

Opposition to the administration's price support proposals appeared stronger in the House, all of whose members face election contests this fall.

Rep. Poage of Texas, second-ranking Democrat on the House Agriculture Committee, predicted yesterday the President could not count on more than three of the 23 committee members to support his program. This wasn't far off private GOP estimates.

Ellender, in a weekend radio speech, said the Eisenhower-Benson price program would "wreak havoc among our small farmers" by further reductions in their incomes and purchasing power.

He contended Benson has been trying "to blacken and besmirch the present farm program" by issuing "deceiving statistics, loaded figures and slanderous utterances."

Aiken discounted attacks by Ellender and others as "a lot of political campaign chatter."

Ellender also hit out at the wool bill which, instead of continuing the government loans which have piled up domestic wool in government hands, would ask domestic producers to sell at market prices. Benson could make up any difference by payments financed through a part of import duties on foreign wools.

Ellender said this amounted "to a blank check for sheep growers."

Barn and Contents Burn on Farm Near Knob Noster

A fire of unknown origin burned a barn to the ground Sunday afternoon on a farm 11 miles to the northwest of Knob Noster, doing an estimated total of $6,000 worth of damage. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

The farm, owned by Larry Matthews, is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Fuller. The barn, measuring 40 by 60 feet, caught fire at about 4 p. m. Destroyed with it were a calf, 475 bushels of corn, 1,500 bales of hay, a feed mill and harness saddles and tools.

The county fire truck from Warrensburg and another truck from Concordia were called but fire was beyond control when they arrived. R. B. Summitt, Lee's Summitt, sent a bulldozer from his farm nearby to spread the hay for easier control of the blaze.

CARACAS, Venezuela (P) — Economic issues rated top billing at the 10th Inter-American Conference today, with the United States on the defensive after carrying the ball against communism last week.

Sixteen of the 19 Latin-American nations at the conference supported the United States in warning international communism to stay clear of the Western Hemisphere. Now they want to talk about their economic problems—and they want the United States to listen carefully.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles and the rest of his delegation assured Latin American last week that the United States wants to cooperate on economic plans that are mutually advantageous. However, the Latin Americans are not likely to be satisfied with anything less than definite commitments that will eventually lead to a solution of their economic problems.

They feel that the United States, as the major market for their raw materials and natural products, must agree to solutions for basic economic problems if any headway is to be made in the battle to better living standards.

Agreeing on an economic policy rather than answers to specific problems seems to be the goal of the Latin-American delegates at this time. The chore of putting the policy into effect will be undertaken at a conference of finance ministers and ministers of commerce gathering.

"As long as I am in the United States Senate, and I hope it is a long time," he said, "I don't intend to treat traitors like gentlemen. They are not gentlemen."

Making no reference to persons in politics, the Wisconsin senator, who has almost five years to go in his present term, said "Some people have told me that I shouldn't get so rough."

"It's a difficult job to pick these slimy creatures without getting rough. If someone can tell me the gentlemen's way to dig out Communists, I invite them to 'come in, the water's fine.'"

Prior to the talk, McCarthy said in an interview he wanted to testify under oath about his current work with Army Secretary Stevens.

He said he wanted Sen. Karl Mundt (R-S.D.) who ranks next to him on his investigations subcommittee, to assume the chairmanship temporarily while McCarthy presents "all the facts as a witness."

McCarthy has been fighting the Army over reports that the committee's counsel, Roy Cohn, sought special privileges for G. David Schine, former committee aide who was drafted into the Army.

Hail Ridge District Must Levy School Tax

BOONVILLE (P) — Residents of Hail Ridge school district who did not pay school taxes last year are going to have to do so this year. County Superintendent of Schools C. A. Repp said that it will be necessary to levy a 40-cent rate this year.

Most of the children attending the school are from out of the district and last year the tuition they paid plus money the district had in the bank paid the operating expenses.

Aunt Jemima Makes Hit, Her Pancakes Hit Spot Here Today

Pancake Day for the United Fund and Mercy Hospital, being held in Sedalia today, is a success. The combined efforts of Civic Clubs and numerous other clubs and organizations are being rewarded, according to Lloyd Phillips, the general chairman.

Aunt Jemima, the original radio and TV star, added color to the day's events. Arriving shortly before 10 a. m. in Sedalia, she was escorted through the business section of the city to the O'Connor Chevrolet-Buick Co., garage where the pancakes are being served.

Through the day Aunt Jemima visited the public schools, attended the Rotary Club and spent much time at the center of activities. She sang songs, visited with the people and had as much fun as members of the various organizations who were doing the work.

Checking through the kitchen, where more than ten large griddles were busy trying sausage, buckwheat and good old fashioned pancakes, there were faces of many men seen behind these griddles, working harder than they have in years.

Request Full Airing of Dispute Between Mc Carthy and the Army

McCarthy Returns To Washington: Fights for His Way

MILWAUKEE (P) — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), embroiled in one of the most furious fights of his career, left Wisconsin yesterday after a weekend in his home state, tenaciously determined to fight communism his way "as long as I am in the United States Senate."

Since he flew in here during an icy gale Friday night with his wife, the senator:

1. Offered to step aside temporarily as chairman of his Senate investigating subcommittee, and testify himself on the Cohn-Schine-Stevens controversy.

2. Said he would ask author William Buckley to pinch-hit for him in a television answer to an Edward R. Murrow program critical of McCarthy. (Murrow later refused the substitution.)

3. Told an audience of businessmen he would press his investigations into alleged internal communism no matter "how high or low those are who scream at what we are doing."

4. Scored the "shouting and hullabaloo of the past week" and told newsmen he wants answers to his questions in Maj. Irving Peress case.

"I think American people are getting awfully sick and tired of the constant yak-yak to the effect that we haven't been gentle enough with the Communists and their protectors," said McCarthy in a press conference at Appleton shortly before flying back to Washington.

"The shouting and hullabaloo of the past week have taken the tension away from the question to which we still are awaiting an answer: Who in the military promoted Maj. Irving Peress when they knew he was a Communist."

Kept him from overseas duty, gave him a plush job in the United States, and an honorable discharge?"

Reporters asked about Vice President Nixon's Saturday night speech in which he said the Republican party insists that the fight against communism must be "fair and proper."

McCarthy, who earlier had said where there hasn't been fair play by the Senate committee, said, "I won't dignify any of the remarks by making a statement on myself. The records speak for themselves."

"I definitely intend to vigorously pursue my probe of communism."

That same determination was voiced by McCarthy in his Saturday night speech before a Manitoque Junior Chamber of Commerce gathering.

"As long as I am in the United States Senate, and I hope it is a long time," he said, "I don't intend to treat traitors like gentlemen. They are not gentlemen."

Making no reference to persons in politics, the Wisconsin senator, who has almost five years to go in his present term, said "Some people have told me that I shouldn't get so rough."

Moulder Charges GOP Uses Farm Group a 'Machine'

WASHINGTON (P) — Republican leaders have been accused by Rep. Morgan Moulder (D-Mo.) of "bullying and organizing a vast political machine" out of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service program.

In a talk on the House floor, Moulder said "of great concern to the farmers of America, is the ruthless partisan domination of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service by the Republican leaders in the administration."

He said American farmers, both Democratic and Republican, resent "political bosses interfering with and dominating the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service as is now being administered by the Republican administration."

He mentioned no names.

At the same time the Missouri also said in his district "the Post-office Department has, without just cause or reason, preferred party and ridiculous charges against efficient and honorable men serving as postmasters."

They are men, he said, whose reputation and service in office never has been questioned.

"And I am reliably informed," he added, "that such charges are preferred at the request of the Republican committees for the purpose of creating postmaster vacancies for Republican political patronage."

MPS Repeats Hope to Buy Gas Service

Would Pay Original Offer, $32-Million, For Subsidiary Firm

TOPEKA, Kan. (P) — Missouri Public Service Co., Warrensburg, reiterated today that it still hopes to buy Gas Service Co., a Cities Service subsidiary, at the $32 million dollar figure it offered in an original purchase agreement now expired.

The Warrensburg, Mo., utility, through its attorney, Louis R. Gates, Kansas City, Kas., told the Kansas Corporation Commission it would be able to pay the agreed purchase price.

It denied a contention by counsel for the Kansas commission that expiration of the original sales contract would be a bar to the purchase.

He said he would file the brief Friday noon and the commission set next Monday as the date for considering the motion of its own counsel to dismiss the case on the grounds that the question is moot.

Jay Kyle, KCC counsel, contended that since there no longer is a contract between Missouri Public Service and Cities Service there is no legal issue before the commission.

Gates asserted that the public interest involved made the case a live issue and argued that the transaction should be considered open to its merits.

Here where issues are so important as those raised in this case," Commission Chairman Jeff Robertson said, "there can be no objection to a week's delay. The commission will rule on the motion to dismiss at that time."

Since the expiration of the original sale agreement, Cities Service has made plans to sell the stock as a public offering which it expects can be made by May 1.

Knowland Calls For Senate Group To Hold Inquiry

WASHINGTON (P) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said today the Senate Government Operations Committee should give priority to a full airing of a dispute between its chairman, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), and the Army over alleged demands for favored treatment for an Army private.

Knowland, the Senate majority leader, said both the Army and McCarthy should make available all the information they have on the charges and countercharges involving Pvt. G. David Schine, a former investigations subcommittee staff member.

The Government Operations Committee is the parent group of the investigations subcommittee. McCarthy is chairman of both.

Knowland said he can't tell any senator what to do, but he said the matter was of "sufficient importance that all members of the committee ought to give the investigation priority over all other matters."

"The public is entitled to know what the facts are," Knowland said. "The committee should devote the necessary time to developing those facts, if it takes one day, two days or a week."

Although there have been suggestions that some other committee conduct the investigation, the California senator said he thinks the Government Operations Committee has the primary responsibility for looking into the situation.

Knowland told an informal news conference that if, as has been reported, the Army's report on the Schine affair was an abbreviated one, the "full facts" should be heard.

Smakly, he said that if McCarthy has additional information in his Senate investigating subcommittee files, it should be dug out and made available to the committee when it looks into the matter.

McCarthy has arranged for a subcommittee meeting tomorrow to look into his charges that the Army tried to "blackmail" the group into dropping an investigation of the Army, a charge that Secretary of the Army Stevens has called "fantastic."

Knowland spoke out as Republican leaders studied strategy for bringing at least a truce in the battle and keeping it from turning into an open knock-down fight between McCarthy and the Eisenhower administration.

McCarthy and GOP leaders seemed agreed that a showdown at which he and top Army officials would testify under oath is in order to get at the truth in the welter of charges and countercharges.

But where and when to stage it—and whether publicly or behind closed doors—remained undecided.

One major question was: Should the investigation be entrusted to McCarthy's own subcommittee? After Vice President Nixon's speech Saturday night, with its passages obviously directed at McCarthy the feeling spread on Capitol Hill that a showdown must come soon.

Dulles Tackles Mountain of New, Weighty Problems

WASHINGTON (P) — Secretary of State Dulles, back from an Inter-American Conference full of gratification over the firm stand against international communism taken at the session in Caracas, plunges today into a mountain of new and weighty problems.

Flying in from Venezuela yesterday, the secretary showed unmistakable pleasure over the adoption of a resolution—which he sponsored—condemning international communism as "a special and immediate threat to the national institutions and the peace and security of the American states."

He predicted other valuable contributions to hemisphere solidarity at the meeting of American foreign ministers.

Dulles had a luncheon date at the White House which provided opportunity for a quick report to President Eisenhower and a look at the problem—what next?

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Saturday it expects to join with the Duquesne Light Co. in building at Pittsburgh the nation's first full-scale central station nuclear power plant.

Reports indicated, meanwhile, that the State Department was ready to get down to brass tacks with Russia on President Eisenhower's proposal to pool atomic power for peaceful purposes.

These U. S.-Soviet talks, begun last December, have so far dealt with procedure for discussion of the plan. But it appeared that, after clearing it with the Allies, the United States is ready to point conversations directly at how to put the plan into operation.

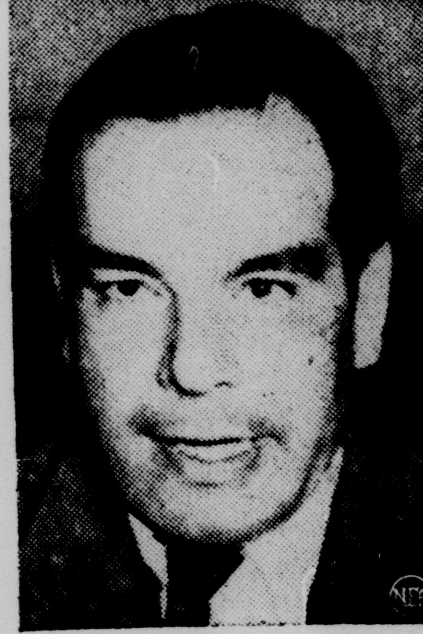

The AEC announcement said the Duquesne proposal was the most favorable to the government of mine submitted. The agency said it would provide a better idea of what it takes in design, know-how and money to build and operate similar plants in the future.

Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss said the project would save the government 30 million dollars.

That was his estimate, in a statement, of the difference between the joint cost and the cost without private capital of the construction and first five years of operation, Chikaskia River.

CLINTON, Mo. (P) — The bridge across the Grand River three miles south of here collapsed five weeks ago tomorrow.

Fatemi Has Relapse, Goes To Hospital

Ex-Foreign Minister Is Placed Under Care Of Shah's Physician

TEHRAN Iran (P) — Ex-Foreign Minister Hossein Fatemi, stabbed by an unidentified assailant, suffered a relapse and vomited blood during questioning in his prison cell last night, an authoritative source said today.

The 45-year-old Nationalist firebrand, facing treason charges for his work as chief aide to ex-Dictator Mohammed Mossadeq, was quickly shifted by ambulance from Ghasr prison to the army's Yussefabad Hospital in Tehran.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, against whom Fatemi used to campaign, was reported to have directed that the prisoner be treated by the sovereign's private physician, Abdolrahim Ayazi.

The authoritative source quoted the Shah as saying Fatemi's life must be saved so his final fate be determined by a court. Iran plans to try him in about two months. His punishment could be death.

Police said a bystander knifed Fatemi after his arrest Saturday. He was reported to have received two wounds in his right side and a slight cut on the chest. His assailant remains at large.

Chief Prosecutor Hossein Azemodah said Fatemi would face the same charges as Mossadeq, who is now serving a three-year sentence for attempting to unseat Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi. The maximum penalty on the charge is death.

Fatemi, who was knifed by a bystander as he was being transferred to prison yesterday, was reported resting comfortably in the prison hospital. Authorities said he had two wounds in his right side and a slight cut on his right chest.

The ex-foreign minister was alleged to have incited Tehran mobs against the Shah in an effort to overthrow the monarchy. He was generally considered the leader of the anti-royalty faction.

The newspaper Eteleat reported police tipped to Fatemi's whereabouts by a servant girl at his hideout who complained that the presence of the "fat bearded man who never leaves his room except at night" made too much work for her.

Convicted Man Begins Fight to Escape Death In Chair

GREENSBURG, Pa. —John Wesley Wable, 24, convicted of slaying a sleeping truck driver on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, today began fighting for a new trial to escape the state's electric chair.

A. C. Scales, chief defense attorney, said he will appeal the jury verdict of first-degree murder with recommendation for death on grounds the prosecution erred in presenting testimony.

A jury of seven men and five women deliberated four hours Saturday before convicting the Ohioite, Pa., handyman of shooting to death Harry F. Pitts, 39, of Bowling Green, Va., as he slept in his parked truck.

Wable, closely guarded in his cell, was quoted by his attorney as saying yesterday: "I don't understand how they could bring in that verdict. I didn't do anything."

Wable is charged with slaying Lester B. Woodward, 39, of Duncannon, Pa., and wounding John K. Speherd, 34, of West Alexander, Pa.

State GOP Chiefs Don't Want Sen. McCarthy In Mo.

ST. LOUIS —State Republican leaders don't want Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), to speak in Missouri in behalf of party candidates in this year's elections if the Wisconsin senator "disturbs the President's program."

Perry Compton of Montgomery City, chairman of the state GOP committee, and Ancel A. Skaggs, chairman of the Republican City (St. Louis) Central Committee, made the statements yesterday.

Both said they would oppose issuance of any invitation to McCarthy to speak in behalf of candidates in the state.

"If Senator McCarthy is disturbing the President's program," Compton said, "then I don't want him in the state and if I'm chairman he won't be invited."

Compton said his statement allows for a change of attitude on McCarthy's part.

Vice President Nixon, in a speech obviously aimed at the Wisconsin senator Saturday night, told the nation reckless statements and "questionable" investigating tactics hurtling the Eisenhower administration.

"I don't know of anyone on the committee," Skaggs said, "who would be for McCarthy or anyone else coming in here if they are fighting the Eisenhower program."

Compton said the state committee will select a speaker's bureau for primary elections in August and the bureau will choose speakers, subject to his approval.

Sen. McCarthy spoke in St. Louis during the 1952 presidential campaign.

Dairy Products Controls May Be Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today the government may be forced to resort to production controls for dairy products if means cannot be found to increase production.

"The government cannot continue to pile up dairy surpluses," he said, "and cannot reduce the surpluses it now holds as long as production exceeds demand."

Benson said, however, he felt confident that consumption can be expanded to match production if the dairy and food industries join with the government in a concerted promotion campaign.

The secretary made these comments at a news conference at which he said his department expects to set up a "pilot plan" in one or more major consuming areas by April 1 to experiment with schemes for funneling present government-owned surpluses of butter and cheese onto American dinner tables.

Details of this plan and areas to be covered will be announced later.

The department is known, however, to be considering various plans for selling surplus dairy products to consumers at cut rate prices. Some would use coupons entitling holders to buy government stocks at reduced prices. Others would involve sale of government stocks to distributors at prices that would enable them to sell freshly produced butter along with surpluses to consumers at reduced prices.

The government now holds about 301 million pounds of butter, 312 million pounds of cheese and 322 million pounds of dried milk purchased under its dairy price support program.

The secretary said that developing controls for dairy production would be difficult. He said no one has come up yet with an effective plan. Present farm law provides no authority for controls over dairy production.

Georgia Digs Out of Tornado Debris Today

ATLANTA (AP) — A small army of soldiers, airmen and civilians today formed a cleanup task force in the wake of weekend tornadoes which killed eight persons in central and west Georgia and did more than $23 million dollars damage to property.

Three separate twisters whirled out of the night Saturday and carried their lethal force into Macon, where three died; to a rural area near the central Georgia city, killing three others; and to Lawson Air Force Base, adjoining Ft. Benning, where two more were killed.

Four of the dead were children. Seventy persons were injured and 23 hospitalized.

The tornadoes slammed into the same general areas where similar storms killed 18 and piled up damage exceeding $30 million less than a year ago.

The return visit of the Southland's spring scourage came a few hours after the Weather Bureau lifted a tornado alert.

West Georgia was hit first. What appeared to be the largest of the tornadoes tore a path 600 yards wide across the air base near Columbus. The powerful winds over-turned several giant C-119 Flying Boxcars. Eight of the 35-ton craft were destroyed and this contributed heavily to the 20-million-dollar damage estimate at Lawson Field and Ft. Benning, the nation's largest Army base.

Dead at the air base were 6-month-old Linda Joyner, daughter of Sgt. I.C. and Mrs. James T. Joyner, and Airman 3.C. Bobby T. Robinson, 22, of Dublin, Ga. The baby died when several huge cinder blocks tumbled from the roof of her parents' two-story house and crushed her in her bed.

Two tornadoes took parallel paths through the macon area three hours later and accounted for most of the dead and injured. Macon hospitals still house 15 persons and 35 others were dismissed after treatment.

The Macon dead were 6-month-old Dorothy Ann Lockert, Gilbert Robinson, and Austin Hogan. The parallel twister killed Irene Wallace, 11, and Lorena Wallace, 6, when it destroyed a farmhouse in rural Litzella. Sam Emory was killed when another farmhouse collapsed near Centerville.

Ryckman, Former Sedalian, Fights Rabies In the Ozarks

A former Sedalian is now receiving considerable notice in Springfield for his efforts in controlling rabies in the face of an increasing number of cases.

He is R. M. Ryckman, acting director of public health there and who previously taught at Smith-Cotton High School for seven years. He is the son of H. L. Ryckman, 261 East Saline.

Ryckman was only recently appointed to the public health director after having served as environmental sanitarian in the health department. With the promotion went a raise from $235 to $380 a month.

Ryckman is now at work on a new ordinance aimed at controlling rabies. The present ordinance he said, is aimed mainly at the control of dogs running at large and not at rabies control. An increasing number of the counties around Green County have been quarantined because of rabies. Which means that in those counties all animals subject to the disease must be kept tied or penned and are to be vaccinated.

The new ordinance, Ryckman said, would incorporate three principles of rabies control: impounding and destroying infected animals; antirabic vaccination of dogs and the licensing of dogs.

Ryckman was hired as sanitarian in July, 1952. He attended a three-month U. S. Public Health Service training school at Topeka early this year.

He holds two college degrees—an A. B. in sociology and economics from Washington University in St. Louis and a B. S. in science from the University of Missouri.

Nixon Receives Praise Over GOP 'Answer'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon's statement of the Eisenhower administration case has been praised by a Republican as what the party needed to "get down to business," while a top Democrat said it just echoed his criticism.

Between these two poles ranged wide reaction to the talk nationally telecast Saturday night, much of which was obviously aimed at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Nixon took occasion also to speak up for the administration's "new look" in defense and diplomatic policies and to affirm that President Eisenhower is the effective leader of the government and party.

But most of the comment centered on such Nixon statements as one that "men who have in the past done effective work exposing communism . . . have, by reckless talk and questionable methods, made themselves the issue" and there by helped "those whose primary objective is to defeat the Eisenhower administration."

McCarthy himself declined direct comment, but he said in a speech in Manitowish, Wis., "I don't care how high or how low these men who serve at what we are doing, I don't intend to treat traitors like gentlemen."

Socialists Are Having Own Berlin Feud

BONN, Germany (P)—Rearmament and Karl Marx have helped plunge West Germany's Socialist party into a crisis.

Like the British Laborites, German Socialists are fighting among themselves—and in part over the same issues.

The negative results of the Big Four conference in Berlin have brought inner Socialist dissent into the open.

After their party trailed in last September's national election, a vigorous group of young Socialists cried that the leadership had invited defeat by championing Marxist doctrines and failing to adopt a clear foreign policy line.

In contrast to the inflation-ridden 20s when the Socialist banner flew high, prosperous, well-fed Germans of 1954 have no stomach for the 1848-thinking of Marx this group argued.

They demanded that the party softpedal Socialist doctrine, tradition and change from a "class" party into a "people's" party. Only in this way, they said, could the Socialists dig into the monopoly of middle class votes held by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic party.

The young Socialists argued that the party's "ohne mich" (without me) attitude on the question of a German contribution to Western defense was a liability in the election.

They said the Socialists should support Adenauer's policy of co-operation with the West—or chart a workable, alternative foreign policy.

The Socialist foreign policy line had been that West Germany should avoid the obligations of alliances with the West and work solely for German unity.

Old Guard Socialists thundered back that "Marxist doctrine" is the time-tested foundation of the party. To bid for middle class backing would risk losing the hard core of workers, they argued.

This struggle raged for months behind closed party doors until Russia's V. M. Molotov blocked German unity for the immediate future, at least.

Now, Socialist Deputy Georg Kahn-Ackermann has publicly told his party that its argument that German rearmament would pre-empt the chances for unity does not hold water after the Berlin conference.

It was the first open defection by a Socialist member of Parliament. Party discipline in Germany is tight and the Socialists usually vote as a solid bloc on all issues in Parliament.

As a result, the young Socialists are pressing harder for revision of a policy which they claim Molotov discredited by his refusal at the Berlin conference to consider

Allen Dulles Says US Gives Away Vital Data

WASHINGTON (P)—America's top intelligence executive said today, "We tell Russia too much."

Director Allen W. Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) declared in an interview in the weekly newsmagazine U. S. News and World Report:

"We Americans publish a great deal in our scientific and technical journals and in congressional hearings. . . .

"I would give a good deal if I could know as much about the Soviet Union as the Soviet Union can learn about us by merely reading the press.

"Sometimes I think we go too far in what our government gives out officially and in what is published in the scientific and technical field. We tell Russia too much."

Dulles, a brother to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, said U. S. intelligence evaluation is now set up so as to prevent any military surprises, such as the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941 or the Red Chinese intervention in Korea in 1950.

Holsum BREAD

Now in HOLSUM bread . . . pure refined liquid DEXTROSE

WHAT IS DEXTROSE?

Dextrose is a natural sweetening . . . the kind found in fruits and many vegetables. It is indispensable to human life since it is a necessary constituent of the blood stream. Because dextrose is absorbed directly into the blood stream and does not require digestion, it is instantly available as a source of strength, energy, and quick pick-up.

WHY USE DEXTROSE?

Medical research has proved Dextrose to be perfect for rapid stimulation and for quick pick-up. Persons who have difficulty in consuming sweet foods (because of an intolerance of regular sugar) have found that foods made with Dextrose are easily digested and more healthful. Physicians have prescribed Dextrose for persons of all ages as an easily assimilated food of high energy value.

Ridgway Was Consulted Over Zwicker's Threat to Resign

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—After his famous encounter with Senator McCarthy, Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker angrily picked up the phone, called his superior, Lt. Gen. Withers Burress, and threatened to resign from the Army.

McCarthy had slapped Zwicker in the face with derisive insults, charging that he "lacked the brains of a five-year-old child"; should be "removed from any command"; was "unfit to wear the uniform"; was either dumb or dishonest.

"I don't have to take this!" exploded Zwicker afterward over the phone to his superior officer, and said he would give up his Army commission before swallowing any more insults. Burress immediately telephoned the Army chief of staff, Gen. Matt Ridgway, about Zwicker's threat to resign.

Ridgway considered the entire McCarthy attack serious enough to call in his top officers who agreed that McCarthy was undermining Army morale. Zwicker had gritted his teeth and taken McCarthy's abuse for refusing to disobey orders. Now it was up to the Army, they decided, to come to Zwicker's defense. This was one factor that led to Secretary Stevens' original stand against McCarthy.

Talking over the problem, some officers got to comparing Zwicker's war record with McCarthy's. Ironically, McCarthy got elected to the senate in the first place by wandering up and down Wisconsin, affecting a phony limp and posing as a Marine hero.

McCarthy's Real Record

But the actual record shows that, while Zwicker was winning 13 combat decorations including the purple heart, McCarthy didn't earn a single combat medal. His alleged wound came from a sailor's prank during an initiation ceremony crossing the equator; and during the height of the Pacific war, McCarthy resigned from the Marine Corps to go home and run for the senate. He boasted during his senate campaign that he had enlisted as a private, but the record shows he wangled a commission, not as a second Lieutenant, but as a first lieutenant beforehand.

Here is the complete record of the man who impugned the patriotism of General Zwicker.

When McCarthy first resigned from the Marine Corps he tried to fast-talk the Marines out of a couple of air medals. These are always awarded as a matter of routine for every 10 air missions. McCarthy claimed 30 missions, but the Marine Corps, checking the records, could find record of only nine. Even these were flown as an "observer," in other words, as a passenger. So McCarthy's application was turned down.

Long after the war had ended and McCarthy had become an important senator, he applied for his air medals again. At first they again turned him down. But right after Eisenhower's election, the brass hats discreetly chose to ignore the record and take the senator's word for the number of missions he had flown.

At his request, McCarthy was formally "decorated" with the air medals at a military ceremony in his office, to which reporters and photographers were carefully invited. Thus McCarthy became the first Marine in history to get the full treatment usually reserved for congressional medal of honor winners, for nothing more than a couple routine air medals.

McCarthy's "Wound"

McCarthy also promoted a commendation for allegedly bravely "refusing to be hospitalized" though suffering from a "severe leg injury." This was awarded on the recommendation of a Marine crony, Maj. E. E. Munn, who wrote: "On 22 June 1943 Captain McCarthy suffered a broken and burned foot and leg. He, however, refused to be hospitalized and continued doing an excellent job... working on crutches."

A routine inspection of Navy records, however, shows that McCarthy was crossing the equator on the U.S.S. Chantrelure on June 22, 1943. His shipmates report that McCarthy injured his foot all right, but not in action against the Japs. He was "wounded" during the traditional King Neptune hazing ceremony while crossing the equator. Here is how it happened, in the words of one of his buddies:

"McCarthy was nearly through his initiation when he was hurt. He was going down a ladder with a bucket fastened to his foot when he slipped. His other foot caught on a lower rung—an iron pipe a few inches from the steel bulkhead—and he fell backward injuring his foot. ... After my initiation was over and I had rinsed the stain from my shaved head, I went to the sick bay to see how Joe was getting along. They had decided that three bones were broken."

Thus McCarthy became the only Marine in history to be awarded a hero's commendation for crossing the equator.

McCarthy Resigns

McCarthy was such a mediocre Marine officer that, while his buddies shot up the promotion ladder during the rapid war build-up, he was promoted only one rank from first lieutenant to captain. Later, he tried to add lustre to his Marine record by claiming in his official biography that he had risen from a private to captain. Marine records show, however, that he was sworn in as a first lieutenant on Aug. 4, 1942 skipping the rank of second lieutenant.

Finally, while General Zwicker was storming the beaches at Normandy and leading the 38th Infantry Regiment across the Rhineland, McCarthy was wangling to get out of the Marines to go home and electioneer. He was granted one furlough, during which he went back to Wisconsin and campaigned for the senate—contrary to Marine regulations. In this first try, however, he lost to Sen. Alexander Wiley.

A few weeks later, McCarthy applied for another 30-day leave to campaign for re-election to the circuit court bench. This was in October, the Marine Corps turned thumbs down, gave 1944, at the height of the Pacific war. However, him his choice of fighting or resigning.

Though McCarthy had announced to the press in 1942, I want to join for the duration," he handed in his resignation.

It was accepted Feb. 20, 1945, and McCarthy hurried home, displaying his phony limp to the voters; while his Marine buddies were still fighting the bloody battles for Saipan and Okinawa.

Couples Are 'Old Marrieds' When Petty Irritations Go

By Ruth Millett

They've finally settled down to marriage when: Instead of worrying about his safety or being indignant because he didn't telephone to say he would be late to dinner, she calmly turns the burners on the stove down to simmer and beats him to the evening paper.

Instead of giving her a lecture on the importance of keeping a checkbook in a business-like manner, he just corrects her arithmetic and writes in the checks she forgot without even bothering to get mad.

Instead of waiting for him to notice the new curtains and being hurt when he doesn't, she marches him right in to look at them and tells HIM how much they help the looks of the room.

Instead of trusting himself to remember such important dates as their wedding anniversary (he'll never forget the time he forgot) he makes a note of all such events on his office calendar.

Try To Soothe His Nerves

Instead of trying to get him to tell her what is wrong when he comes home in a grumpy mood, she hurries dinner on the table, tells the kids to walk easy, and reminds him that it's the night of his favorite TV show.

Instead of falling for that question "How do you like my new hat?" and giving her an honest answer that will either cost him money or put her on the defensive, he glances at it and tells her it looks fine but then she'd look fine in anything.

Instead of trusting to luck for what she'll get for her birthday, she starts in weeks ahead giving him hints—that he promptly forgets she gave him the moment she says in feigned surprise, "How did you ever know this is what I wanted?"

Instead of bristling when she mentions the name of an old beau, he pays her a sudden compliment knowing she must be feeling the need of one.

Instead of talking about all the things they are going to do some day they suddenly realize that today is the important day.

Wives With Charge Accounts Buy More But Save In End

A recent study made of the shopping habits of women discloses that when a woman walks into a department store where she has a charge account she is more likely to buy something than when she goes in armed only with money in her handbag.

Before you husbands who have long suspected as much start yelling "I told you so," you'd better hear a little more of the story.

While it is undoubtedly true that if your wife has a charge account at X department store she is likely to buy more in that store than the woman who hasn't an account there, you may be the winner, not the loser, in the long run.

With that charge account she can sit at her telephone and order an article she needs and have it sent out—a transaction that takes about five minutes.

Without the charge account she would get dressed, go to town and perhaps spend considerable time "shopping" for the needed article.

Shopping Trips Are Expensive

The shopping trip might well mean getting a baby sitter and asking a friend to go along. They'll probably have lunch while they're about it. Also, there's the expense of driving the car down and back and of paying for parking.

By comparative shopping a few cents might be saved on the article, but it wouldn't be any bargain if your wife added in all the costs of the trip to town.

Besides, every woman shopper knows that the cash customer doesn't get anywhere near the service that the charge customer gets. Returning an article bought for cash is much more difficult than returning one that was charged. Also, it is much easier to get a store to do something about the dress that shrinks and fades, or the draperies that don't hang quite right, if the customer has charged instead of paying cash.

An there's another thing. When the woman with a charge account sees a bargain she can take advantage of it, while the woman who buys for cash doesn't always have the money to get the coat at half price or outfit her children for the next year at end-of-the-season sales.

So there are many sound reasons why Mama spends more at the store where she has a charge account than at a store where she doesn't.

Manners Make Friends

She is old enough to know better and yet every year she insists on showing all of her expensive Christmas gifts to her friends who have much less than she does.

A kind and thoughtful rule to follow is never show your gifts to anyone if yours will make theirs look smaller.

Men always shake hands when meeting another man. But when a man is introduced to a woman he waits to see if she is going to offer her hand. A woman may or may not offer her hand—unless she is greeting guests in her own home.

At home, she is supposed to emphasize her welcome with an outstretched hand to every guest she greets at the door.

When a friend shows you a group snapshot he took it may be only human for your first remark to be, "It's simply terrible of me!" But it's more gracious to mention how good it is of someone else before you start commenting on how you look.

When talking about a snapshot taken by somebody else you don't have to try to be as candid as the camera.

Tactless remarks are usually made by persons who are more concerned with their own opinions than the feelings of others. Such people make so many flat statements that some of them are bound to be tactless.

As someone once said, "Tact teaches you when to be silent."

A Chance to Get Out of the Boiling Sun

The World Today—Stevens Goes After McCarthy

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—A man dazed by a direct hit on his head with a political coconut stays flattened or gets back on his feet and pitches some of his own coconuts. Robert T. Stevens got back on his feet.

Now he is Jack, the would-be giant killer, the only man among the Republicans in Congress or the Eisenhower administration who ever took on Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) in a life-and-death struggle.

This 34-year-old wealthy businessman who came here to be secretary of the Army was leading a quiet life in the Pentagon until McCarthy hit him square on the head, and in public.

Most men might have felt the bump right away. Stevens, perhaps because he was a political novice, seemed not to know he was it and spoke at first as though he had scored a victory.

He soon learned his action was generally considered a surrender. It was reported he sobbed. Then he got indignant, then mad. It was hard to see, though, how he could fight back after the shellacking he took. But he did.

The public didn't know at first that he had been dealing with McCarthy long before he got the bump.

Late in February Stevens, accusing McCarthy of abusing Army officers, refused to let the senator question any more of them until he had first faced him in a public, televised hearing.

But the day before this meeting Stevens accepted an invitation to lunch with McCarthy and three Republican senators on his committee: Mundt (SD), Dirksen (Ill) and Potter (Mich.).

In a "memorandum of understanding" which came out of the meeting, Stevens agreed to let McCarthy quiz his generals. McCarthy agreed to nothing, at least in writing. Stevens went back to the Pentagon and told his generals he had won his point with McCarthy.

Army officers henceforth would be treated fairly. Stevens aides got a look at the memorandum: where did it say anything about fair treatment? It didn't. But, Stevens said, he had a verbal understanding on that.

The reality began to dawn on him. He heard that same afternoon McCarthy had told a reporter Stevens could not have surrendered more abjectly if he had gone down on his knees. Then Stevens heard how the newspapers were regarding the memorandum: Stevens surrenders.

Mundt and Potter came to his rescue, saying there had been agreement on fair play for Army witnesses. Stevens appealed to President Eisenhower for support and got it. But what could Stevens do now?

What the public didn't know was that Stevens, McCarthy and Roy Cohn, chief counsel of McCarthy's investigating committee, had had a number of conversations about G. David Schine, Cohn's pal and a nonpaid worker for the committee until he was drafted into the Army.

There were rumors Cohn had interceded with the Army for special treatment for Schine. Finally a Democratic member of McCarthy's committee, Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, repeatedly asked the Army for a report on all this.

But between McClellan's first request in January and last week,

KILL WITH CARE

Copyright by Hugh Lawrence Nelson. Published by Hugh Lawrence Nelson, Inc.

THE STORY: Lieut. Mark Richards of the Colorado City police force has returned from his honeymoon, bringing Joan, his bride, to investigate the death of Police Chief Otto Drover, whose daughter was a friend of Private Detective Jim Dunn. Chief Drover received a phone call from Barker Atwood prior to his murder by two "monsters" in a fake horror film publicity stunt. Atwood refused to help the police, declaring he had no knowledge that would aid the investigation.

VI

LIEUT. MARK RICHARDS got up from the conference table where the new chief and Sergeant Early were seated, came toward Jim with an outstretched hand.

"Glad you got here, Jim. We're just starting. How is Nancy?"

"I left her with Joan. You got back fast, Mark."

"Of course. Joan and I got up early to head still farther back into the mountains. I turned on the car radio—and heard. We started driving all right, but this way."

"Sorry about that part of it, Mark."

Richards shrugged. In no way at all did he resemble the self-conscious man he had been just prior to the wedding service. He was self-assured, and there was a deep, underlying happiness in him which would remain.

"A cop is like a doctor in some ways, Jim. And Joan—was swell." He smiled at his personal memory, and then his face set into more usual lines. "So let's get on with this briefing. Let's have what you've found out."

Mark nodded to Sergeant Early, who counted off points on his fingers. "The theater manager swears he hadn't hired anyone for a publicity stunt. No reason to doubt him that I can see. He was still at the reception when we picked him up and he has witnesses to prove he'd been there all the time."

"I'll buy it for now," Mark said.

"We pulled in everyone we could think of who might have had a grudge against the chief. Here in town, I mean," Early said.

"The routine," Mark said.

"Nothing," Early said. "Except how much all the local bad boys loved Chief Drover. You know. We're holding a couple of them for you to see, but if you want my honest opinion, it adds up to nothing at all."

JIM waited on the sidewalk until Mark came out of headquarters after a stop at the switchboard.

"You're dead on your feet," Mark said. "I just phoned Joan. Nancy finally had something to eat. I guess after they both had a good cry. Nancy has gone to sleep now."

There was pride in Richard's voice when he spoke of his wife. "We'll get you a quiet room somewhere, and I promise to phone you there as soon as Nancy wakes up. As soon as she wants you."

"Good enough. My bags are at the Holt Avenue Hotel. The Holt Ave. I guess you'd call it. Oh, for heaven's sake. I guess I'm the suggestible type. I already have a quiet room. Right there. I guess it's really time I got some sleep."

Mark drove slowly toward the hotel.

"You make anything of this, Jim?"

"While I think of it—what about the stains on the cuff and sleeve of the smock? I gathered from the report there wouldn't be much blood."

"But some. On the weapon itself. It was carried away, so it could have been pushed up that loose sleeve. You heard Pardon's description of the weapon. Razor-sharp edges he said. Someone might have cut himself handling it, putting it out of sight quickly."

"Could be. Jim, you sound as if you don't like this. Wait a minute. You know what I mean. You, probably more than anyone else, know how I felt toward Otto Drover. Well, get whoever did this. You know that. But you act as if you didn't like the setup. Do you understand me at all?"

"Yes. I don't like the feel of things. Something's all wrong. Something's screwy. I get the idea, and I don't like it, that someone would have been killed anyway, that it was Chief Drover who was murdered, just because a chance put him there."

"Maybe you didn't put that with your usual clarity, Jim, but I understand. You mean Drover was picked to be killed just by chance?"

"It stands out," Dunn said. "It was only by chance he went past the theater."

"The bank entrance is next door," Mark said. "If someone had known Drover was on his way to see Atwood, had an appointment with him, the bank entrance could have been kept under observation. It would have been easy enough to divert the gang of kids by throwing candy."

"I said I was tired. Maybe I'm even stupid."

"Maybe. And some times you get impressions better when your body's all in. Let's work up to what I think you have in mind. The phone call first. Let's say for now it was old Atwood, who had more of a problem than going to my wedding. I know him, and he's the type who would scream to high heaven for help if—say he was threatened for instance."

Jim nodded and was a little surprised to find his head did not fall off. "It's what I had in mind, and you know of cases when it has happened that way. An extortion racket. Pay up or else. Or else the same thing will happen to you that happened to prominent citizens so-and-so, in this case the chief of police. It would explain why Atwood was scared, and about the four G's. Which might be pretty cheap at that. But there's still something crazy about it."

Passenger Asks Test For Drunkenness

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Officers, bowing to an unusual request, tested a passenger in a car for drunkenness after giving the routine drunkometer test to the driver.

The passenger explained he and the driver had shared the cost of the bottle and "I want to see if he's getting more of the whiskey than I am."

Found to be twice as drunk as the driver, he returned a dollar of the purchase price, censuring himself for "hogging up all the liquor."

Gets Back $4 He Said He Was Overpaid Almost 30 Years Ago

NEW YORK (AP)—A Portuguese laborer, who said he was paid $4 too much while helping dig a subway almost 30 years ago, is getting back the money that he tried to repay to his old boss.

Edward G. Johnson, official of an engineering and contracting firm, reported a letter had come from Manuel Vieira Concalo saying he had worked for the firm in 1925 or 1926.

Concalo, who now lives in a village near Oporto, Portugal, continued, "And when I left your employ I received, by error, payment of an extra day at $4 approximately. That is why I am sending to you the equivalent amount in escudos to repay my debt. Please accept it."

Johnson said Concalo enclosed 100 escudos, which the firm sent back, asking that he accept the money "as a present from us with our appreciation of your great honesty."

Police Use Pie Wagon To Find Dice Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—It was one of those "floating" dice games—known to the cops but harder to stop than the income tax collector.

So, yesterday, Police Inspector Frank Ahern and his vice squad borrowed a pie delivery truck. They drove to the vacant lot where the dice were in action and piled out of the pie wagon before the game's lookouts could holler—"such crust."

Seventeen men were arrested and $1,100 seized.

Tax Headache Came In 1913 Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Oh, for the good old days when there was no income tax. Or at worst it was nothing much to sneeze at.

The good old days are pre-1913, for that's the year the Constitution acquired the 16th Amendment: "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived."

This supreme law of the land is the grand-daddy of your agonized figuring today, if you haven't filed already, to meet the midnight deadline with the revenue collector.

And you can be politically impartial with your hard feelings. The amendment was officially proposed in 1909 by President Taft, Republican. It was first put into practice four years later by President Wilson, Democrat.

There were some temporary try-outs of nationwide income levies before that. During Civil War days Congress enacted several versions of an income tax. The toughest one pushed the top rate to 10 per cent.

The Civil War tax was highly regarded from the revenue standpoint, but (surprise) not by the citizenry. It went off the books soon after the war.

Then, after much clamor about an income tax being fairer than other types, Congress tried again in 1894. The rate: 2 per cent.

The experiment was short lived. The Supreme Court struck down the law the following year as unconstitutional. That's why the 16th Amendment was adopted.

On March 1, 1914, the first deadline under the permanent law, and for some years thereafter, the taxpayer too much less of a beating than he does in this atomic and expensive age.

His first bill was 1 per cent up to $20,000, 2 per cent for $20,000-$50,000, and so forth up to a 7 per cent peak on incomes of a half million dollars or more. He got a personal exemption of $3,000 or $4,000 if he was living with his spouse.

Tax scales went up and down in later years, mostly up, especially in wartime.

So the form you filled out for today, covering 1953, puts the bottom rate at 22 per cent. For the $200,000 bracket and up it's 92 per cent. Exemptions are down to $800.

Now, if it were the year 1912...

Warns of Fishing Chain Letters

M. L. Edwards, postal inspector for Sedalia and this immediate area, informs the Democrat that chain letters purportedly for fishing clubs have been going through the mails and he states that they are definitely in violation of postal laws and regulations.

There is little chance, he asserts, of anyone profiting legitimately through them and he advises they be completely ignored.

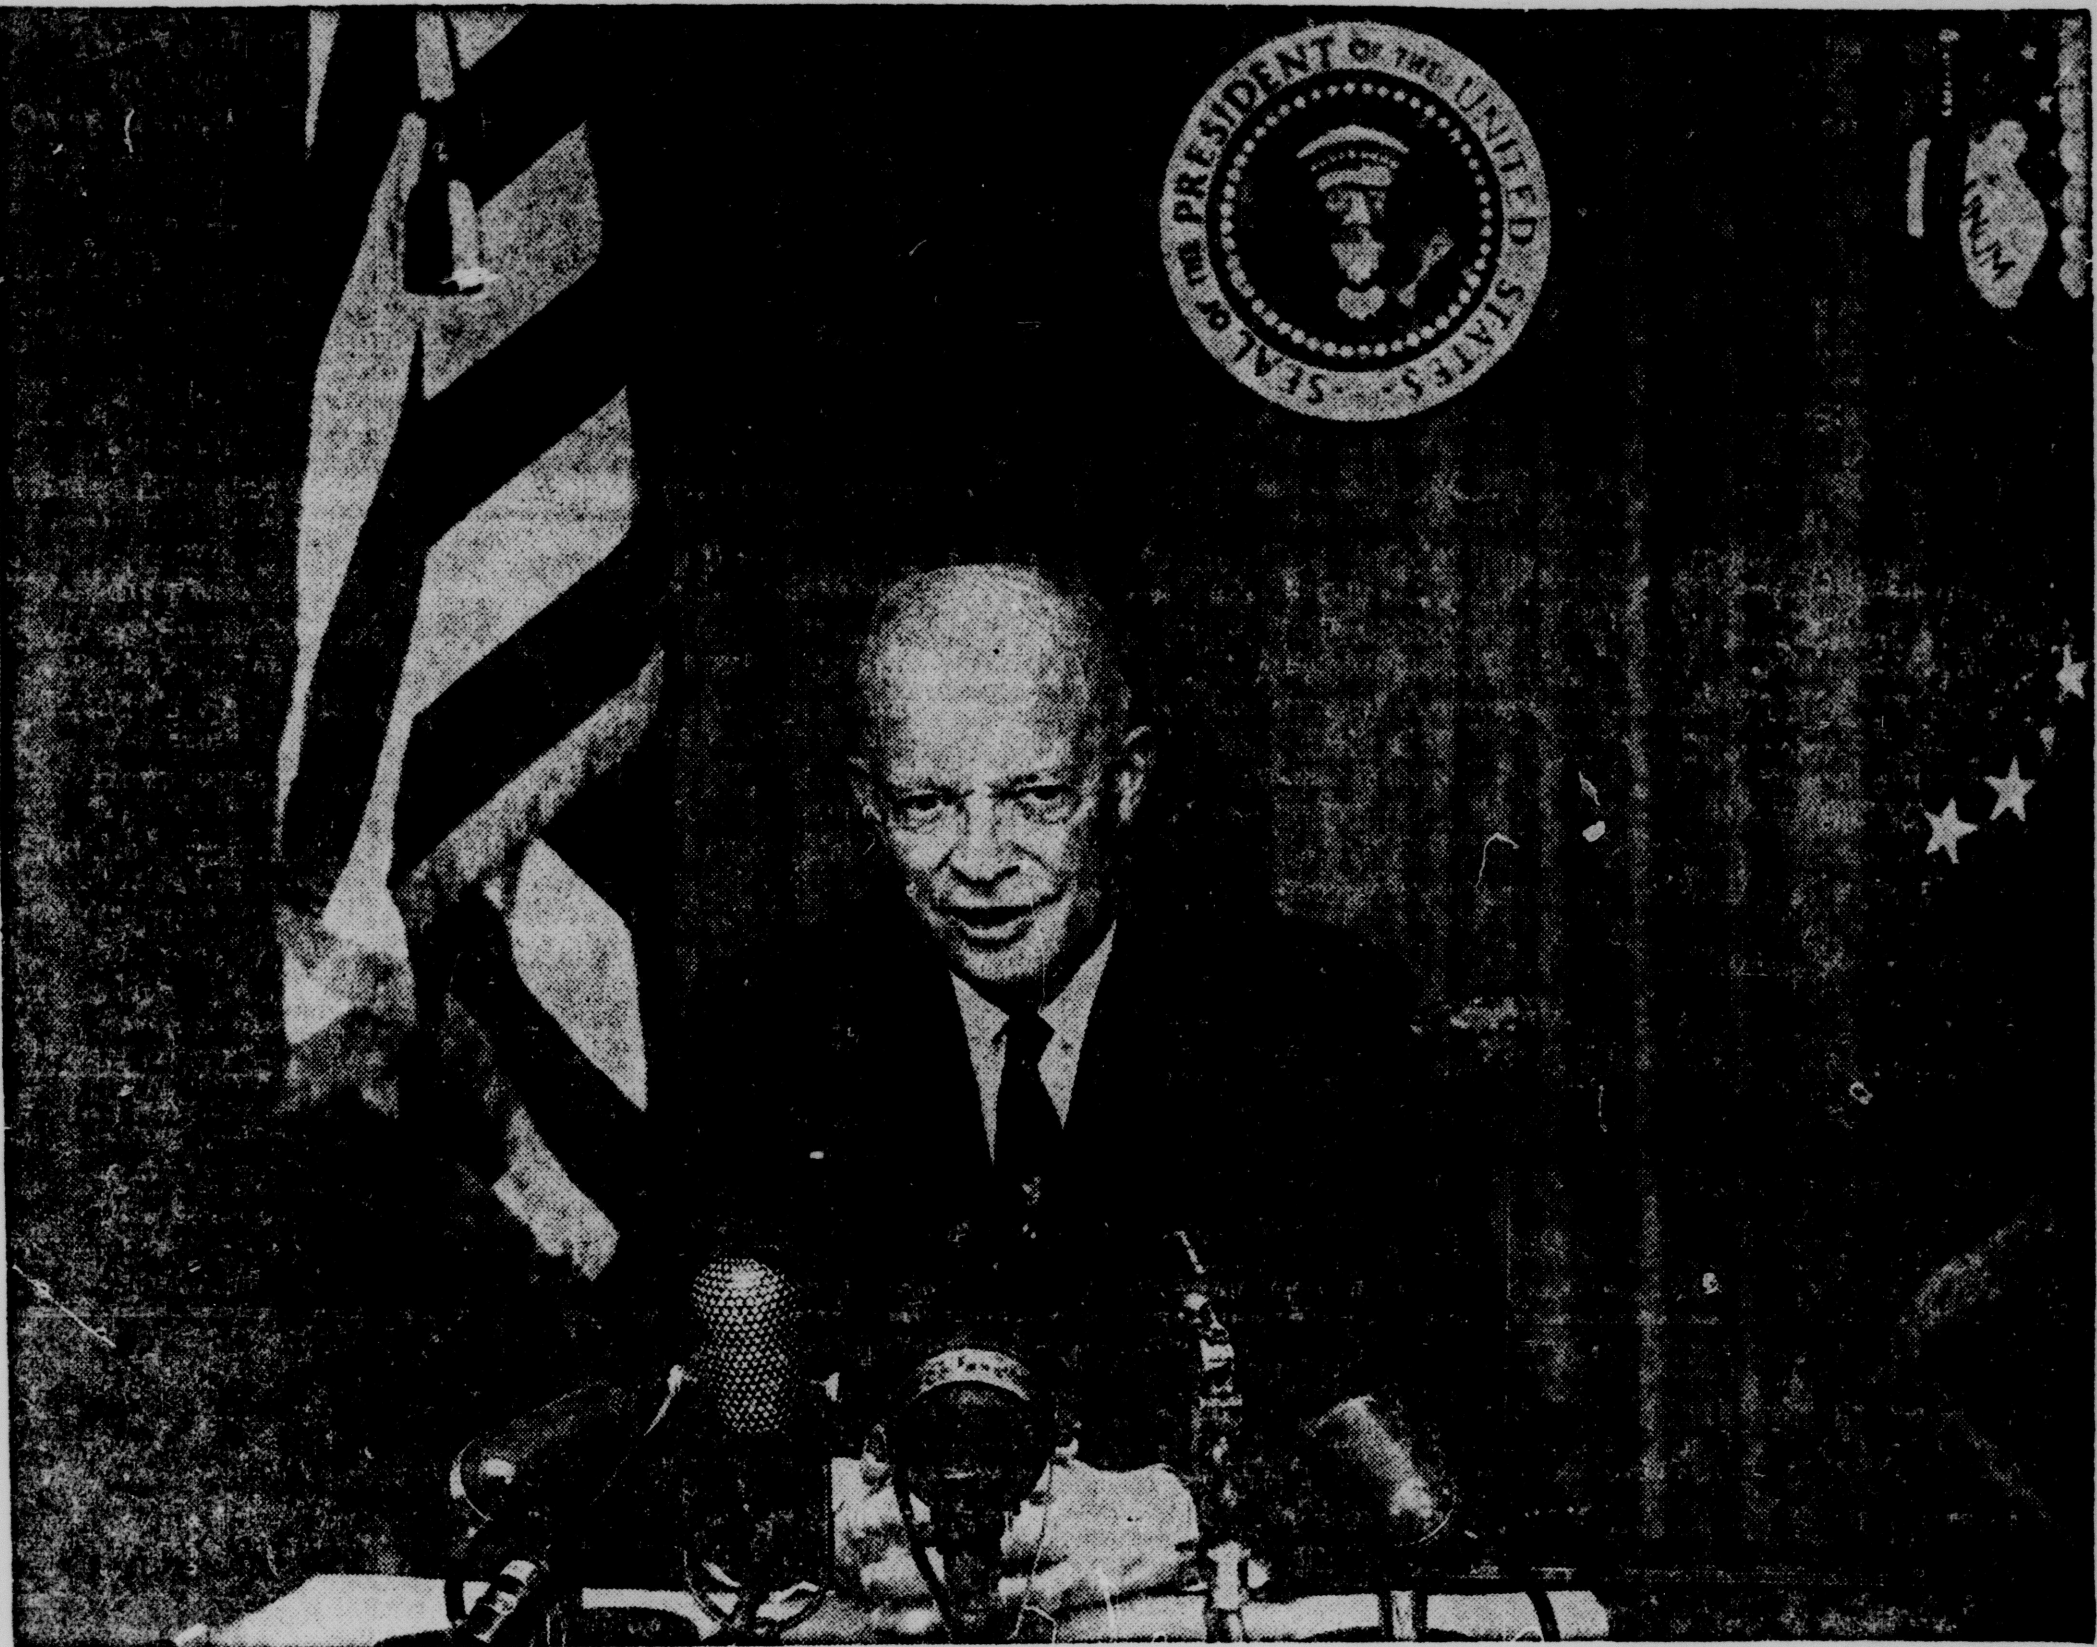

On the face and content of them, they appear perfectly harmless.

Bob Feller Now Fighting For a Place

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Almost two decades ago—1936 to be exact—a powerful, fuzzy-cheeked youngster strode into the spring training camp of the Cleveland Indians. Manager Steve O'Neill liked what he saw and that started Bob Feller's career.

Today, 249 victories later, Feller, the oldest major leaguer in point of service, is fighting for a starting job. He'll have a job, all right, but at the moment he doesn't figure as one of the Big Four.

The onetime fireballer, who never did spend a day in the minors, is hopeful that at 35 he can help the Indians break the New York Yankees' stranglehold on the American League pennant.

"I hope I can win a batch this year," he said. "But it won't be like 1946 when I pitched 371 innings and struck out 348. I think I worked 36 complete games that year. I've never kept track of my relief record, but I've never been much of a hand at it."

The best guess is that Manager Al Lopez will spot Feller wherever he can. If Rapid Robert doesn't want to do bullpen duty he probably won't be forced to.

The cuffing he took during his three-inning stint against the New York Giants in Tucson, Ariz., yesterday should not hurt Lopez much, however. The Giants won the ball game 16-6 and slugged Feller for eight hits and a half-dozen runs. But it was Bob's first outing and veterans sometimes are slow to warm up.

Hal Newhouser, another old-timer, is trying to make a comeback with the Indians and he was equally unimpressive. He gave up 10 hits and another six runs. Newhouser is not under contract.

Speaking of old folks, Sal Maglie, the Giants' 37-year-old right-hander who has been plagued by assorted ills for the last two seasons, went four innings and was tapped for only two hits. Manager Leo Durocher was enthused over the performance.

"I hadn't seen Sal look so good all last year," he gushed.

The surprising Baltimore Orioles won their ninth victory in 10 starts by downing the San Diego Padres of the Pacific Coast League 10-4. The Orioles backed up their pitchers with four double plays.

Without the services of the injured Bobby Thomson and Eddie Mathews, the Milwaukee Braves collected 17 hits and went on to whip the Cincinnati Redlegs 14-8.

The Brooklyn Dodgers won their fifth straight, defeating the Boston Red Sox 9-6. Joe Black, a big disappointment last year, allowed only two hits in 3 1-3 innings on the mound.

Two home runs and three triples enabled the Chicago White Sox to defeat the Yankees 7-5. The 23 players used by the Yanks made 15 hits, but the extra base power of the Pale Hose more than offset the rash of blows.

The St. Louis Cardinals scored a 4-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs with only four hits.

The Philadelphia A's, another undefeated grapefruit league outfit, won No. 5—a 13-3 decision over the winless Washington Senators. The Philadelphia Phillies outlasted the Detroit Tigers 13-11, and the Dodger "B" team whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-5. The Red Sox scrubs 10-8.

Thomson Hurt, Then Mathews Has Injury; Double Blow to Braves

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—In one weekegone weekend, old man injury hurled two quick strikes past the stunned Milwaukee Braves and put a deep chill on their pennant hopes.

Thomson fractured the ankle in three places attempting to break up a double play during an exhibition game against the New York Yankees and will not see action again until about May 15. That means he will miss the first four weeks of the season.

Mathews' injury, which is expected to sideline him only for about two or three days is far less serious, Milwaukee officials are greatly concerned, however, because this is the third time Mathews' back has acted up this spring and they fear that the young slugger may not get off so easily the next time.

Hialeah's 40-day racing season is its 27th since the track opened in 1925. There was no racing in 1928, 1943 and 1945.

Baseball Analysis— Detroit Hopeful Of Moving Up From Sixth Place

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Freddie Hutchinson, anchored with a batch of very earnest and very eager ball players, believes his Tigers are improved. The Detroit manager, however, is restricted to hoping his youngsters better their sixth place finish of last year.

"We hope to improve our position of last year," he said. "But it's going to be tough. There are at least three or four good clubs in front of us. One behind us, Baltimore, is pretty good, too."

"We're not kidding ourselves," he added frankly. "We've got a long way to go and it's not going to be smooth sailing. We broke the ball club down and we're going to build it up. And it's going to be done whether I'm there or not."

The plain-speaking Tiger manager is of the opinion the Yankees are going to have trouble trying to hang up their sixth straight flag.

Regarding his own club, Hutch thinks it is better because of the year's experience gained by such youngsters as Harvey Kuenn, Bon Nieman, Billy Hoelt, Ray Herbert and Al Aber. He thinks Ray Boone will continue the terrific hitting pace he set last year after his acquisition from the Indians and is high on newcomers Frank Bolling, a second baseman, Bill Tuttle, an outfielder and Dick Donovan, a pitcher.

On the negative side, Freddie bemoans the absence of a left-handed power hitter on the club and the lack of sufficient speed. "Practically all of our power comes from the right side," he said. "Walter Dropo, Boone, Nieman, Kuenn, all hit from the right side. That means the good right-handers are going to give us trouble. If we don't come up with a good left-handed hitter, it's going to hurt."

St. Benedicts Get Upset Win Of NAIA Title

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The St. Benedict's College Ravens, a team that didn't have a chance a week ago, today boasted the National Intercollegiate basketball pennant.

The Ravens clinaxed a series of upsets in beating Western Illinois' Leathernecks of Macomb, 62-36, before 10,500 in Municipal Auditorium Saturday night.

Coach Ralph Nolan's Kansas got the job done with a rousing finish after Western Illinois had led most of the way.

Springfield (Mo.) State had a comparatively easy time in the preliminary game, beating Arkansas Polytechnic of Russellville, 75-61. Springfield won the small college national title in 1952 and '53.

St. Benedict's, a Catholic school of 450 all-male students operated by the monks of the Order of St. Benedict, had only one close call, 62-61 over Pasadena (Calif.) College, in getting up to the finals.

The Ravens entered each of their five games as the underdog. They came to the 32-game tournament with a season record of 19-5 after winning the Central Kansas intercollegiate Conference championship.

Benny Peters, an all-tournament choice of sports writers and officials, hit the telling buckets for St. Benedict's early in the fourth quarter after the teams had made the final turn tied up at 45-41.

Sharing the all-tournament team honors with Peters were Lupe Rios, Western Illinois; Bob Hopkins, Pasadena; E. C. (Eke) O'Neal, Arkansas Poly, and Jerry Anderson, Springfield. Anderson was named the most valuable player for the second straight year.

St. Benedict's placed two men on the second all star team. They were Joe Stueve and Bill Samuels, Jim Miller, East Texas State; Art Helms of Springfield, and Gene Talbot of Western Illinois got the other three spots.

Four Surprise Teams Enter NCAA Playoff

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Four surprise teams, whose chances of appearing in collegiate basketball's annual climactic show were considered rather slim, will fight it out for the NCAA championship this weekend.

Coming up from regional play-offs last Saturday are the La Salle Explorers of Philadelphia, Penn State's Nittany Lions, Southern California's Trojans and the Bradley University Braves.

Bradley, which upset Oklahoma A&M 76-57 at Stillwater, Okla., and Southern Cal, 66-65 double overtime victor over Santa Clara at Corvallis, will meet in the first semifinal game Friday night.

Penn State and La Salle clash in the second game the same night. Penn State humbled Notre Dame 71-63 at Iowa City. La Salle got to Navy 64-48 at Philadelphia.

The finals are scheduled in Municipal Auditorium Saturday.

Both Penn State and Bradley are at-large entries.

Of the semi-finalists, only La Salle was given much of a pre-tournament buildup. The Explorers were ranked 12th nationally in the Associated Press poll. Bradley, Southern Cal and Penn State didn't make the top 20.

Southern Cal, which lost to Kansas 42-43 in the 1940 finals of the Western championships, took the only shot in the second overtime session at Corvallis and won. After Dick Welsh of USC scored a free throw early in the last session, Santa Clara elected to stall and gamble on one shot. The Broncos never got off a shot.

Third places in the regionals were won by Indiana, the 1953 national champion, 73-62 over Louisiana State by Iowa City; North Carolina, 65-54 over Cornell at Philadelphia; Rice, 78-55 over Colorado A&M at Corvallis.

Other than the USC-Santa Clara game, there wasn't too much contesting in the regional finals.

Bradley, handspanked and barred from NCAA postseason games last year because of rules infractions, poured it on Oklahoma A&M by 14 points in the Aggies' own gym. Bradley played like its fine team of 1950, which went to the finals in both the NCAA and NIT meets.

Penn State employed an effective shifting zone defense in snapping Notre Dame's winning string at 18 games. Ed Haag's three set shots late in the third period were the deciding blows.

All America Tom Gola and sophomore teammate Bob Maples got together to put La Salle into the final playoff. Maples hit for only 13 points, but he got 8 of them early in the third period when the chips were down. Gola scored 22.

When Raschi Slips, He Does It Big

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Ex-New York Yankee hurler Vic Raschi has come up with a curious record in his two outings for the St. Louis Cardinals this spring.

In eight innings of work, he has yielded just four hits—two homers a triple and double.

Raschi turned in three hitless innings against the Chicago Cubs yesterday. Then Dee Fondy cracked a homer in the fourth and Ernie Banks followed a walk with a long triple. The Cards won the game, 4-2.

The Cardinals take on the Cubs here today in the third game of their West Coast series.

K. C. Dons Are New Mo. Valley Champs

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Dons are the new Missouri Valley AAU women's basketball champions.

The Dons defeated Midland Jewell 42-37 yesterday. St. Joseph Goetz placed third with a 45-33 victory over United Broom. The top three teams will compete in the National AAU women's tournament starting next Sunday at St. Joseph.

No Champs. Many Contenders Toss Punches This Week

NEW YORK (AP)—No champions are in action but plenty of the top contenders will throw leather this week in a fine national boxing program. The four top bouts of the week, all scheduled for network television shape up as cockers.

They are middleweights Joey Giardello and Willie Tioy at Madison Square Garden Friday night, and light heavyweights Harold Johnson and Paul Andrews at Chicago Wednesday, bantamweights Nate Brooks and Henry (Pappy) Gault at Brooklyn tonight and lightweights Cisco Andrade and Hoacine Khalif Saturday night.

Brooks is the 20-year-old Olympian flyweight champion who moved into the pro limelight with a bang last month by knocking out Billy Pearce to win the North American title in his eighth fight. Their ten rounder from Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena will be telecast by Dumont starting at 9 p. m., CST.

Johnson, winner of 11 straight, is clamoring for a title shot at light heavyweight champion Archie Moore. He ranked as the No. 1 contender with a 47-5 record. Andrews record is 23-2. Starting at 9 p. m. the ten rounder will be telecast by CBS.

The Giardello-Tioy battle in the Garden Friday night figures to be a slugfest. TV fans still are talking about no-clinch Willie's sensational knockout of Moses Ward in Detroit last month.

NBC will telecast and ABC will broadcast the 9 p. m. scrap. Undeclared Cisco Andrade of Los Angeles and Hoacine Khalif, Algerian lightweight champion, collide in the Saturday night ten rounder at the Toledo Civic Auditorium.

ABC will telecast the bout, starting at 8 p. m.

Trojans Tops In State

COLUMBIA (AP)—Sparta's Trojans have grabbed the state's class B high school basketball championship.

The Trojans scored a 58-56 victory over Morehouse Saturday after 30 seconds elapsed in a sudden death overtime.

Troy took third place with a 54-47 victory over Altan.

Sports Roundup— Richards Sees Short as Most Difficult, Vital of Positions

TAMPA (AP)—Speaking as a man who is eminently qualified on the subject, Paul Richards says there isn't any question that shortstop is the hardest position to play properly in baseball. This despite the fact that the only thing the Chicago White Sox manager ever did in the big leagues was catch.

"A good shortstop has to have everything," he said. "He has to be quick and smart and has to know how to make more plays than any other man on the field. If you haven't got a fine shortstop you haven't got a ball club. You can get by without him, depending upon which club. Really top men at other positions, but not there."

The reason Richards was chosen to settle the long-standing debate was simply the fact that, boy and man out of Waxahachie, Tex., he did everything there was to do on a ball field, including pitch. He played at least one full year of minor league ball at every infield position. No other player, so far as we ever heard, can make such a claim.

"I started out as a pitcher in high school," he recalls. "A pretty good one too. The only thing that made me different from other

Palazzi, Who Led Holy Cross To NIT Title, Has Pro Worry

NEW YORK (AP)—Togo Palazzi, 71-65 earlier in the evening of Holy Cross, probably the only basketball player in history named after a Japanese admiral, also seems to be the only person who's worried about his ability to make good as a pro.

The crew-cut, stockily built youngster who led Holy Cross to its first National Invitation Tournament championship isn't even sure that he'll go for the pro game.

"I'd like to play all right, but my main purpose in going to Holy Cross was to get a good education," he said today. "I have a chance for a good industrial job when I graduate, and I'd hate to pass it up and then flip as a pro."

"I am pretty sure I can shoot well enough. I believe I have the strength to play that 72-game schedule and I know I'd hustle enough. But I don't know whether I can play defense well enough for the pros."

Palazzi left little doubts as to his scoring ability with a torrid 22-point demonstration against Western Kentucky in Holy Cross' semifinal upset. Then he showed his appreciative fans that he can play defense too when he restricted Duquesne's great Dick Ricketts to 13 points in the Crusaders' 71-62 upset victory in the finals Saturday night. Niagara defeated West-

Persistency Pays Off For Moberly Cagers In National Tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP)—Persistency finally paid off in the National Junior College Basketball Tournament for Moberly (Mo.) College.

It won the tournament championship Saturday night by beating Snow College of Ephraim, Utah, 55-49, in an overtime game. Moberly had participated in four previous national junior college meets but never had finished better than sixth.

Third place went to Hannibal-LaGrange of Missouri, 77-71 victor over Lon Morris of Jacksonville, Tex. It was the third time Hannibal-LaGrange finished third in the double-elimination tournament. Lon Morris wound up in sixth place.

Spring Seeded Alfalfa Will Get a Stand

Although late summer seedings of alfalfa are recommended over spring seedings, it is possible to establish good stands from spring seedings if the proper steps are followed. The chances for success with spring seedings are greatest in North Missouri and become increasingly smaller as one moves south.

If you do plan to seed alfalfa this spring, here are the steps you need to follow for best results:

1. Apply lime and fertilizer according to soil test.
2. Prepare an excellent seedbed and roll the ground both before and after seeding.
3. Inoculate the seed if alfalfa or sweet clover hasn't been grown on the field recently.
4. Use Buffalo Ranger, Atlantic or the common varieties such as Kansas common. All these varieties carry resistance to bacterial wilt with Ranger and Atlantic being particularly resistant.
5. Seed at the rate of 20 pounds per acre.
6. Seed the alfalfa to come up as soon as possible after the last killing freeze. (The average date for the last moderate freeze at Kansas City is April 2. Of course, when we speak of averages we know that 50 per cent of the time there will be moderate freezes after that date.)
7. Preferably seed alone. If you do use oats as a nurse crop, seed the oats at one-half the regular rate and cut them for hay.
8. Mow when needed to control weeds.

With close attention to these details and a good season, it's possible to get some hay from alfalfa seeded this spring. But before seeding alfalfa this spring, consider using some of the surer hay crops such as oats or soybeans followed by alfalfa seeded this fall.

Warnings or Use Of a Heat Lamp

Heat lamps can be real fire hazards if improperly used, warns a University of Missouri extension agricultural engineer.

Ralph Ricketts points out that heat lamps make convenient and inexpensive pig and lamb brooders. However, they must be used with care, says Ricketts, since the white-hot filament from a broken bulb can easily set bedding on fire. And the heat from an unbroken bulb can set straw on fire if the bulb comes into direct contact with the straw.

Ricketts advises using commercial fixtures with the bulbs. These fixtures have metal reflectors that concentrate the heat and protect the bulb from damage. They also prevent moisture from a leaky roof or condensation from striking the bulb. Porcelain sockets and a turn-over ball which prevents the bulb from directing its heat into the straw if it falls are other features of the commercial fixtures.

New Bulletin on Corn Yield Tests Available

A new University of Missouri agricultural experiment station bulletin listing results of 1953 hybrid corn tests is now available from county extension agents.

Entitled "Missouri Hybrid Corn Yield Tests," the bulletin contains information on yields, root and stalk lodging, ear height, number of dropped ears, and moisture content at harvest for each of the 49 different hybrids tested. Tests were conducted at 13 different locations over the state with open-pedigreed certified hybrids, closed-pedigreed hybrids, and promising new experimental hybrids.

Ask your county agent for Bulletin 613 or write the mailing room, Mumford Hall, Columbia, Missouri, for a copy.

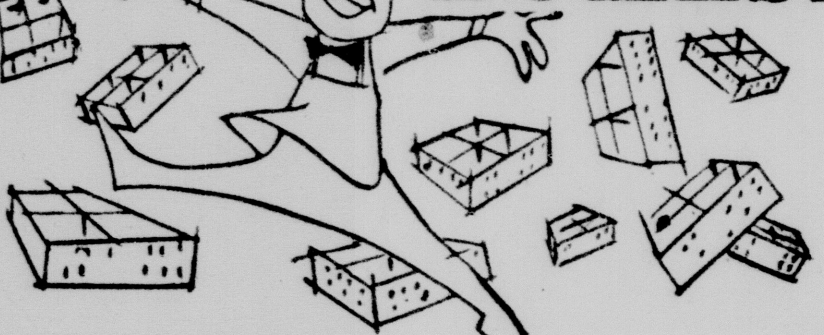

Einstein Observes His 75th Birthday

PRINCETON, N.J. — Dr. Albert Einstein observed his 75th birthday yesterday in his customary fashion — at home and without fuss.

Although the famed scientist himself disdained celebration, a flood of congratulatory letters and telegrams from friends all over the world poured into his home here. And there was a birthday cake, baked by his secretary, Miss Helen Dukas. But there were no candles. Einstein once remarked that birthdays are for children.

CELEBRATE 40TH ANNIVERSARY—The living founders of the Missouri Farmers Association cut the birthday cake during the 40th anniversary celebration of the organization. The ceremony was held at the Newcomer School six miles north of Brunswick where in 1914 seven farmers met and formed a farm club that grew into the Missouri Farmers Association which now has more than 150,000 members. The surviving farmers that attended the first meeting in 1914 are, from left to right: George Heisel, Brunswick; Earl Smutz, Kansas City; and W. J. Heisel, Brunswick.

Three Cuttings of Hay From Non-Hardy Alfalfa

I was out with Jim Perry the other evening to a meeting of the Ringing-Brushy 4-H Club. It was a special meeting and they had invited the Black Jack Club, which is just across the line in Morgan County, as guests.

One of the Morgan County men, a Mr. Anderson, was telling about seeding some of the non-hardy (African) alfalfa last spring. It had made 3 nice cuttings of hay. The field was a fertile bottom on Lake Creek.

This non-hardy alfalfa has been used some for temporary hay because it will make earlier and more rapid growth than the common, adopted alfalfa. It is called non-hardy as it generally does not survive the winter so needs to be reseeded annually. At the present time the seed costs more than Kansas Common for example and growers probably will be ahead to sow the hardy alfalfa instead.

In either case soil tests and complete soil treatments are essential.

Dohman Calves Look Good
Forest Dohman, Sweet Springs, was in the other day to bring me up to date on progress on his Balanced Farming plan. He was telling how good his calves were from his new bull. All of them had come in a one week period. I said they ought to weigh 400 to 450 pounds by the time of the Feeder Calf Sale of which Forest is a member. Forest suggested that he could do better than that and cited 1953 figures. The calves were later last year. He didn't think the other bull was quite as good and the calves still averaged 450 pounds at sale time.

Animal Husbandry Specialists tell us that with better bulls, improved pastures and earlier calves we can add 100 to 150 pounds per calf at weaning time. We need to get at it now. Forest to show that it can be done.

Mrs. Durely Completes Kitchen Re-modeling
I was rushing down to the ASC Office for a drought committee meeting the other afternoon and passed Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Durely of Hughesville along the way. A few words I started to hurry on when Mrs. Durely remarked that she now has her kitchen remodeled. I immediately insisted I must stop by to see it and she replied I would have to let her know so she could be prepared.

Anyway the point is that a former Home Agent and I assisted her with requested remodeling plans when they were first in the Balanced Farming Association in 1951. Some things planned including a sidewalk were realized almost within days of the time the plans were made. Other things had to wait, but the plans were ready and now have materialized.

Vegetable Garden Meet Wednesday At the Courthouse

A vegetable garden meeting is being held in the assembly Room of the Courthouse at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday afternoon March 17. Garden leaders from the 4-H clubs and foods leaders of the home economics extension clubs are especially urged to attend, but everyone interested in vegetable gardening is very welcome. The speaker will be Clyde Cunningham, extension gardening specialist from the University of Missouri at Columbia.

Several topics will be up for discussion including new vegetable varieties, soil tests and fertilizer treatments and insecticides. New variety recommendations involve Irish potatoes, sweet corn, tomato plants, watermelons and bush limas.

Nearly every garden tested has been seriously overlimed, apparently with hydrated lime which is low in magnesium. Recommended treatments are deep plowing and the addition of trace elements to replace those that may have been tied up by over liming. Most gardens are also low in organic matter, but high in phosphate and potash, so 8-6-8 or 5-10-5 plus trace elements will be satisfactory. The amount to use will depend on the soil test.

Insecticides recommended this year will be methoxychlor and lindane with some DDT also being used.

Further information on all three topics can be obtained at the garden meeting.

Aerial Spray Course At Missouri University

A two-day aerial spray application short course will be held at the University of Missouri College of Agriculture on Wednesday and Thursday, March 17th and 18th.

Although designed primarily for aerial spray applicators, Stirling Kyd, University Extension Entomologist, says the short course will also be of interest to custom ground spray operators.

Topics for discussion include liability and responsibility of the aerial applicator, the use of airplanes in soil fertility improvement, new developments in aerial seeding and chemical crop drying. The short course also includes a work session at the Columbia Airport in which new agricultural aviation equipment will be demonstrated.

College gave me one of the nicest unheated foods demonstrations I ever saw. They squatted on the floor in front of the fireplace and on a little round bread board not more than 12 inches in diameter made a sort of pie crust stick we had had at tea and a tiny fried pie with highly seasoned meat that they serve for tea often here and she held a frying pan over the fire and cooked them."

Farm Outlook Includes High Livestock Price

Here's a summary of the farm outlook as seen by University of Missouri agricultural economists.

The economists describe business adjustments as being in a "wait-and-see-what-happens" stage. However, they say that wide-spread unemployment and tight money are not in prospect.

The economists expect prices of prime and choice grade cattle to continue steady and strengthen as spring progresses. Hog prices are expected to remain strong during March. But with prospects for continued heavy milk production, milk prices will probably continue to decline the next 30 days.

Near record supplies of corn and other feed grains indicate only a slight increase in price of feed grains the next two months. The economists point out that support prices continue to be the dominant factor in determining wheat prices. The national average minimum price support for the 1954 crop is $2.20 per bushel. However, the 1 billion, 332 million bushels of wheat on hand January 1st set a new record for that date.

The economists predict egg prices will average from 1 to 1½ cents per dozen lower in March than in February.

Otterville Woman Takes A Welfare Position

Miss Lillian Doris Shults, Jefferson City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shults, Otterville, has been appointed by Proctor N. Carter, state welfare director, as Cole County welfare director. She succeeds Vernon McConnell, who has been transferred to head the Buchanan County office at St. Joseph.

Miss Shults formerly was a case worker in the Cooper County office. The past year, she has been supervisor of the prevention of blindness program at state headquarters in Jefferson City.

Family Perishes Inches from Safety In Apartment Blaze

KOKOMO, Ind. (AP) — A family of four perished in a blazing apartment here late last night—inches from a window and safety.

The dead were Paul Imlay, 27, a filling station operator; his wife

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT—Sedalia, Mo., Mon., Mar. 13, 1954 9

Betty, 24; and two children, Cindy, 4, and William, about 1. Imlay apparently awoke and smelled smoke in their second-floor garage apartment. Rushing outside, he called to neighbors for help and raced back inside. Fire Chief Francis X. Mannion of Kokomo said he apparently succeeded in getting the wife and two children out of bed but collapsed a few feet from the window through which they could have jumped to safety. Mrs. Imlay was lying across the two children, her outflung arms just inches from the blackened window, Mannion said.

WHEAT: Top dress wheat immediately with 50 to 60 pounds of N. Two pounds of nitrogen is required for every one bushel increase in yield.

OATS: Apply anhydrous ammonia as a top dress or before seeding. Same amount of nitrogen is required.

CORN: For maximum production apply 100 pounds or more of N in the form of anhydrous ammonia on land intended for corn production this spring. Corn requires from 1.5 to 2 pounds of N for each bushel increase.

PASTURES & MEADOWS: Top dress old pastures and meadows now for early spring growth. Get grasses and legumes off to a good start with 60 to 80 pounds of nitrogen.

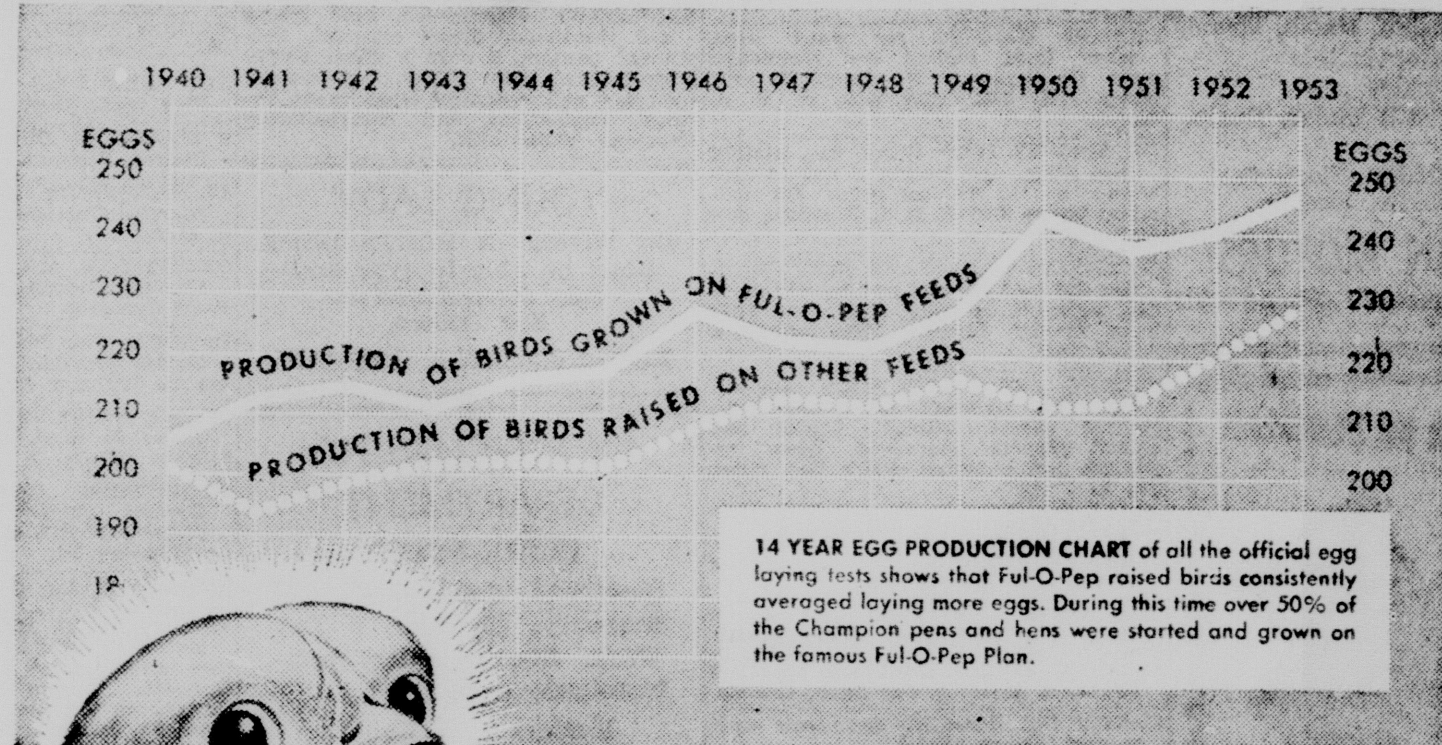

SOYBEANS: Here is a crop that will respond to applications of anhydrous ammonia in combination with adequate amounts of phosphate and potash. Apply phosphate and potash with spreader and plow-down. Then apply 100 pounds or more of N.

Sailor Now Suspects Inheritance Letter Is 'Some Kind of Gag'

LOS ANGELES — Sailor Bill Cabeza says it's a salty trick to tell a man his rich uncle has left him $100,000.

William V. Cabeza Jr., 28, a boatswain's mate U.S. Navy, told reporters last Tuesday he'd received a letter from a brother informing him a rich uncle died and left him an eighth interest in an $800,000 hotel. All he had to do to collect was, leave the Navy.

Yesterday Cabeza said he had checked with the brother in Nebraska and learned no such letter had been sent. And in Miami, Fla., his father, William V. Sr., said he

Mrs. R. Warnhoff, Pilot Grove, Writes and Directs Own Plays

Last month the Lions Club of Pilot Grove treated the residents of that community to the hilarious spectacle of "A Womanless Wedding," wherein some of the most sedate gentlemen in town trotted on stage in old-fashioned gowns and plumed hats, to the screams of the audience. It was a big success and the proceeds were turned over to the polio drive.

But it was no Lion who was the spark behind this production. It was a little lady of nearly 70 years who snapped the whip and had the boys performing well. She was thoroughly familiar with the requirements of the play, because she wrote it as well as directed it. She also costumed the 27 members of the cast.

Mrs. Robert Warnhoff has been writing and directing her own plays for 25 years, both at the school and for other organizations. The annual Soils and Crops Conference at Booneville would not be complete without one of her productions. Her performance of "The Farm Club Meets on Tuesday" stopped the show at last year's conference. One year her dramatics group at the school took part in a contest at New Franklin, competing against 13 other schools, and walked off with all the first-place cups and $25 besides. Her plays never missed taking first place in their class in the Cooper County literary contests.

Mrs. Warnhoff, who has written nearly 15 one-act plays, came originally from St. Louis, where all the members of her family had always been interested in drama, although none of them participated in it. This interest was passed on to Mrs. Warnhoff, who turned it to use for the benefit of her community.

Although she no longer directs plays at the school, she is still asked by civic groups to direct plays for them and she usually consents. Her interest in the Lions production was heartfelt, because she had seen herself the wonderful work done with polio patients at Warm Springs, Ga.

Much of the success of the play arose from the elaborate costuming, which Mrs. Warnhoff did single-handedly. Upstairs in the Warnhoff home is an amazing collection of old gowns, coats, hats, fans, plumes, gloves, canes and miscellaneous props.

These have been collected over a long period of time, and all the clothes are authentic. Some of them, in their time, were worth a great deal of money and even now retain some of their former elegance. Among the ladies' hats, for instance, are some which, properly trimmed, would enhance a modern outfit.

The costumes have been gathered at sales throughout the county and many have been donated by friends who know Mrs. Warnhoff's interest. Shortly after the end of World War II, a young man who had once been in a school play directed by Mrs. Warnhoff sent her from Germany a lustrous, collapsible stovepipe hat which he said had been found in a rich baron's home. That hat is now a prize possession and made its appearance in the "Womanless Wedding."

DISPLAYS COSTUME COLLECTION—Mrs. Robert Warnhoff shows some of the items in her collection of clothes which she uses for play costumes. Here she holds one of the tassels on a henna, pleated, beaded dress and a derby. On the couch are a clergyman's coat and a top hat, while beside them are several ladies' plumed hats of a bygone era. These appeared in a recent production directed by Mrs. Warnhoff. (Staff Photo)

In the collection are 15 old cut-away coats, two clergymen's coats, an Alice blue flapper dress with ten days and nights. Her living room was "a wreck," she said. Strewn about it were all sorts of props, from false teeth to pall-bearing gloves. But the final effect on stage was worth it. Mrs. Warnhoff laughed when she described the six-foot-tall bride wearing a veil made out of a ruffled curtain.

During the years she directed school plays, Mrs. Warnhoff made them such popular events that often she was confronted by some student who wanted badly to have a part in a production for which the cast had already been chosen. The problem was settled in a typical way. Mrs. Warnhoff simply wrote in as many as three or four extra bit parts to accommodate the demand. Sometimes these original parts became favorites for the audience.

One big reason for the success of these plays was Mrs. Warnhoff's own enthusiasm about them and her insistence that the parts be learned completely. She rehearsed each play for five weeks, and then it was up to the actors to make good. There was no prompter to help them out, because the directress does not believe in prompting. She warned them of this and the warning always bore fruit.

Her knowledge of property needs was also reflected in her careful arrangement of these properties on separate, labeled shelves so that the actors would never be without them or forget them. No actor ever stepped before the footlights without a necessary prop or with the wrong one, she said.

Although she does not direct any more plays now as formerly, Mrs. Warnhoff says, "I will do more." And Pilot Grove will always provide a big audience for her productions.

The truth about the picketing of Home Lumber Company by Teamster's Union, Local No. 534

We have recently been approached by Sedalia townspeople and our customers asking why we are unable to settle the strike being carried on by some of our employees as members of the Teamsters Union Local No. 534. Under the circumstances we feel that a complete explanation is due the people of Sedalia and surrounding territory.

During the early part of 1953, certain union representatives came to us and demanded that we enter into a contract agreeing to compel our employees to join the union or discharge them from their jobs in the event they failed to do so. We refused on the ground that this would not be fair to our employees—that employees should be free to choose whether or not they wanted to join the union; also, because the union does not represent a majority of our employees, that it would be a violation of law for us to force them to join the union or be discharged from their jobs for refusal to do so.

The union shop provision would require that any employee we hire must become a member of the union within 30 days and if any time thereafter the employees union dues become delinquent we must discharge that employee.

After several months negotiation we eventually agreed tentatively to all clauses in the revised contract such as wages, hours, vacations, holidays, working conditions and all other matters except the union shop or maintenance of membership with the requirement that all employees belong to the union on penalty of losing their jobs included therein.

We have never had any objection and have none at this time whatever to our employees being members of the union if they wish to do so but feel that such decision would be for the employee to make and not for ourselves.

In Sedalia, we have always employed union contractors to do our construction and building.

Yet today, union pickets are picketing our place of business with the intention of causing us to suffer substantial losses in business and goodwill. Despite our willingness to negotiate and tentatively agree to all other demands of the union representatives, the union continues to allege that we are unfair to labor.

The union is not yet attempting to coerce other lumber dealers in this city to force their employees to join the union and none of these other dealers have attempted to force their employees to do so. Our best information is that none of them have a union shop contract. When the union asked our employees to walk out on strike one regular employee and one part-time employee walked out and began picketing. All other employees refused to comply with the wishes of the union and have remained on the job. They can stay on their jobs whether union members or not according to their wishes and we do not care to deprive them of their right to choose for themselves nor of their right to work because they do not belong to the union.

The Home Lumber Company is the guinea pig in spite of the fact that its dealings with its employees and with the union are as generous as those of any other yard in Sedalia. But if the Home Lumber Company agrees to violate the trust of its own employees in the matter of their freedom to work, it is probable that the union would swiftly use our concessions to force other dealers to comply with their demands.

We sincerely hope this explanation will clarify the situation and that you will understand the true reason for the picket being in front of our place of business.

These are the facts to date. Needless to say, we will appreciate your support.
